BANKING: A CAREER TO BANK UPON

Usha Albuquerque & Nidhi Prasad

Banks are the backbone of a country’s economy. Banking has emerged as one of the most preferred career options among the young generation today. Moreover, technology has transformed the global 24x7 world of banking and financial services in terms of new products, more sophisticated customers and changing cost structures. This along with the widespread use of computer technologies and applications have all combined to transform the structure of the banking industry. The Internet has emerged as an important medium for delivery of banking products and services such as not banking, funds transfer, use of ATMs, mobile banking etc, so it is not surprising that this highly charged environment has transformed many banks creating increased opportunities for those with both financial and digital skills.

Banking careers include personal banking and loan officers, relationship managers, wealth advisory, book keeping professionals, auditing clerks, finance service representatives to name a few. For the beginners, it is the first step towards understanding the global economy, discovering the challenges of the marketplace and identifying themselves with a career that provides them with tremendous opportunities, both within the country and abroad. With new banks coming up every year owing to privatization of services, the industry indeed provides sufficient room for graduates of any field.

Banking is a career that offers opportunities to students from all streams, be it humanities, commerce or science. However, to make a career is banking, you must be good at numbers. That is, your mathematics must be strong enough to record and analyze numerical data. Job opportunities for graduates and post graduates in banking are excellent in India. Once you complete a professional course in banking, you will be offered a position with private banks.

The banking sector conducts written tests and interviews to recruit aspirants to their firm. There are two levels of bank recruitment - Clerical and Probationary Officer. There are a lot of job opportunities for plus two passouts as well. The Reserve Bank of India and the State Bank of India conduct examinations for Probationary Officer posts every year. The Institute of Banking Personnel Selection (IBPS) conducts recruitment examination for filling up vacancies of probationary officers in all the public sector banks of India. IBPS is conducting two tests per year for recruiting aspirants to the nationalized banks in the clerical cadre. The National Bank for Agriculture and Rural Development (NABARD) conducts recruitment examination for its Grade A and Grade B officers. Several other private and public sector banks also conduct tests for recruiting candidates to the clerical and managerial cadres.

After becoming a graduate in Arts/Science/Commerce one can do Post Graduate Diploma in Banking or you can do MBA Finance or Banking, or MBA from reputed B Schools in India. After pursuing professional courses like CA, CMA, CS, LLB also you can join banks. Eligibility criteria in banking sector jobs:

For IBPS Officer’s exams and NABARD the minimum eligibility criteria is graduation degree in any stream recognized by the Govt. of India or any equivalent qualification recognized as such by the Central Government.

INDIA AT CHOOGM 2018

Dr Vivek Kumar Mishra

The Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting (CHOGM) was held in the United Kingdom from 19 to 20 April 2018 and discussed how its member states can contribute to a better future which is fairer, more sustainable, more secure and more prosperous. In the two executive sessions of CHOGM 2018, the main issues that were discussed, are strengthening democracy and the rule of law, the state of the international trading system, achieving Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and climate change, and security issues faced by the Commonwealth countries.

The Heads affirmed their commitment to the Commonwealth’s fundamental political values, reflected in the Commonwealth Charter. The theme of the CHOGM 2018 was “Towards a Common Future” which was reflected in the discussion of the Forum. Addressing the importance of the theme, British Prime Minister, Theresa May said: “we face many challenges in the world today. But the Commonwealth is a unique organisation and at this Summit, we have an opportunity to deliver lasting change that benefits all of our 2.4 billion people.” She also stated that: “the great strength of the Commonwealth is that all our members have equal status, an equal voice and an equal right to make that voice heard. So, as we tackle these challenges, I want to hear from everyone, and everyone will have chance to speak.”

Historical Overview

The Commonwealth is a group of 53 nations, combined total population of around 2.4 billion across all six continents. It is one of the world’s oldest political associations of states, with its roots in the British Empire when some countries were ruled directly or indirectly by Britain. Independent countries from Africa, the Americas, Asia, Europe and the Pacific have joined the Commonwealth over the years, with the last two
INDIA AT Commonwealth: A new beginning

Prime Minister Modi's role

CHOGM 2018 credentials were boosted by Prime Minister Narendra Modi's decision to attend, making him the first Indian PM to attend since 2010. Prime Minister Modi got a personal invitation wherein Pakistan was also invited. The Queen went in person inviting Prime Minister Modi. Modi's decision to attend the Summit against the backdrop of India's historical lack of interest in the organisation, has sent a positive message in London. It is being interpreted as a sign of India's willingness to constructively engage with the organisation at a time when it is struggling with the very question of its relevance.

Prime Minister Modi's Key Accomplishments

- Prime Minister Modi announced doubling of India's contribution to the Commonwealth Fund for technical cooperation and stressed the need to focus on providing developmental assistance to small island states.
- Prime Minister Modi also stressed on the need for balance between large and small states and small islands that are part of the Commonwealth fold. He announced that India is going to help these small island states and coastal states in the Indian Ocean through training programmes at the National Institute of Oceanography in Goa. India's skill Soft Power diplomacy: Prime Minister Modi offered to train Commonwealth countries at its world-class facilities under a plan that would ensure that the Heads of State and Government in London. Prime Minister Modi also highlighted that India is one of 52 other countries that would train 30 boys and 30 girls under the age of 18 every year on the board of the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in such a belief that youth is the future of Commonwealth. He also brought people together.
- Prime Minister Modi during his address admitted that the conference of the Heads of State and Government in London, Dec 11, 2018. The conference is considered as one of the most significant events in the Commonwealth and is attended by members from all over the world. The event is expected to focus on various important issues and address the challenges facing the Commonwealth.

Bilateral Talks: Prime Minister Modi had a series of bilateral meetings and discussions, including with his Bangladeshi counterpart Sheikh Hasina and Seychelles President Danny Faure. On the sidelines of the meeting, Prime Minister Modi and Prime Minister of Bangladesh Sheikh Hasina had a productive exchange of views on various issues of bilateral interest. The two leaders discussed the developmental cooperation between India and Bangladesh, and also ways to implement decisions taken during the meeting. The two leaders also discussed the role of India in the regional and global context.

There has been a noticeable apathy in Indian outlook towards this organisation which many believe has been a source of delivering the required results to inspire Indian interest. Trade is one of the primary areas where India must push. India is well aware that the Commonwealth’s transcontinental membership will help India diversify its trade and economic engagements. India has already pitched for trade facilitation in the World Trade Organization (WTO) to help its services sector. In the Commonwealth, India can lead in ironing the fine details surrounding important trade issues and building a consensus around them, and in turn use this leverage for negotiating leverage at the WTO.

Conclusion:
The objective of Prime Minister Modi's participation at CHOGM 2018 signals to advance the engagement of India with Commonwealth nations. This move is a part of the renewed interest in bringing together like-minded nations to turn their minds to global challenges of trade and investment. India's visit has also conveyed India's desire to see the Commonwealth reflect the interests of developing countries. Prime Minister Modi's decision to attend the Summit is a good signal for development, trade, and investment. India has now firmly established itself as a major player in the global economy and is ready to take on the challenges that lie ahead.

The Commonwealth Nations will be a good platform for India to engage with a wide array of States across the world. This is a unique opportunity for India to showcase its development and growth story to the world. India should take the lead in reimagining the future of the Commonwealth.

Read the following passage carefully and choose the correct question numbers from 11 to 16:

In terms of labour, for decades the relatively low cost and high quality of Japanese workers contributed considerable competitive advantage across numerous durable goods and consumer electronics industries (e.g. Machinery, automotive, televisions, radios). Then labour-based advantages shifted to South Korea, then to Malaysia, Mexico and other nations. Today, Japan appears the closest to best on the basis of labour. Japanese firms still remain competitive in markets for semiconductors, electronics and other products, but the labour force is no longer sufficient for competitive advantage over manufacturers in other nations. Such a relative competitive advantage is clearly not limited to manufacturing industries. Today, a huge number of IT and service jobs are moving from Europe and North America to India, Singapore, and like countries with relatively well-educated, low-cost workforces possessing technical skills. However, as educational levels and technical skills concentrated to four countries, India, China, Singapore, and like nations enjoying labour-based competitive advantage today are likely to find such advantage cannot be sustained through emergence of new competitors. In terms of capital, for centuries the days of gold coins and later even paper money restricted financial flows. Subsequently regional concentrations were formed where large banks, industries and markets resided. As a result, capital flows internationally at rapid speed. Global commerce no longer requires regional interactions among business players. Regional capital concentrations in places such as New York, London and Tokyo still persist, but of course, the capital that flows there is no longer sufficient for competitive advantage over other capitalists distributed worldwide. If an organization is able to combine, integrate and apply its resources (e.g. Land, labour, capital, IT) in an effective manner that is not readily imitable by competitors it can such an organization enjoy competitive advantage sustainable overtime. In a knowledge-based theory of modern industry, the firm is extended to view other knowledge as a resource with attributes like that of land, labour, capital, IT. An organization with superior knowledge can achieve competitive advantage in markets that appreciate the application of such knowledge. Semiconductors, genetic engineering, pharmaceuticals, software, military warfare, and high knowledge-intensive competitive advantage are required to meet the twin-time proven and current examples. Consider semiconductors (e.g. computer chips), which are made principally of sand and common metals. These ubiquitous and powerful electronic devices are designed within computer offices and computers, using commercially available tools and fabricated within factories in many industrialized nations. Hence, land is not the key competitive resource in the semiconductor industry. Based on the above passage answer the following questions:

Q. 11. Which country enjoyed competitive advantages in automobile industry for decades?

(1) South Korea
(2) Japan
(3) Mexico

Q. 12. Why labour-based competitive advantages of India and China cannot be sustained in IT and service sectors ?

(1) Due to diminishing levels of skill.
(2) Due to capital-intensive technology making inroads.
(3) Because of new competitors.
(4) Because of shifting of labour-based advantage into manufacturing industries.

Q. 13. How can an organisation enjoy competitive advantage sustainable overtime ?

(1) Through regional capital flows.
(2) Through regional interactions among businesses.
(3) By making large banks, industries and markets coalesced.
(4) By directing use of various instruments.

Q. 14. What is required to ensure competitive advantage in global markets?

(1) Access to capital
(2) Common office buildings
(3) Superior knowledge
(4) Common metals

Q. 15. The passage also mentions about the trend of

(1) Global financial flow
(2) Absence of competition in markets
(3) Regionalisation of capitalists
(4) Organizational incompatibility

Q. 16. What does the author lay stress on in the context of the trend?
